

DISSER - THE VERBAL PUNCH

The latest news in the mobile application community is the playful name-calling app "DISSER". iPhone and iPod touch users can now name-call or diss their peers and online friends to their heart's content. To generate a diss, users choose a suitable adjective and combine it with a name-calling word from the list. The verbal audio of the diss can then be played and posted as a video-diss on Facebook, tweeted on Twitter or sent by email.

Every sharing action will be rewarded with the addition of bonus words. The random generating diss option is convenient for creating a diss on the fly and can also be triggered by shaking the device. "You are a needless mudflap" or "You are a cheesefilled unicornrider" are only two examples of far over 9,000 possible combinations that can be generated with the app.

"Of course DISSER is first in line when it comes to fun and social media. The ability to diss friends on Facebook, as well as the offbeat word pool that produces unusually funny combinations, has received positive feedback," said Stephan Griesenbrock from the german developer team.

DISSER - THE VERBAL PUNCH is now available for $0.99 at the App Store and is compatible with iPhone, iPod Touch and iPad. To learn more about DISSER please visit: <http://www.disser-app.com>
